Chairman, Executive Committee

The legal duty to comply with relevant health and safety legislation, including avoidance or control of risk to exposure to Legionella bacteria, rests solely with the statutory dutyholder, being either the employer or the person in control of the premises or systems where any relevant risk is present, and this cannot be delegated. Specific functions, such as carrying out risk assessment, can be delegated. The Legionella Control Association Code of Conduct is designed to help service providers establish appropriate management systems for the prevention or control of risk from Legionella bacteria. The LCA assesses members' management systems upon initial registration, reviews them annually upon re-registration and re-assesses them through company audits. The LCA cannot and does not provide continuous supervision of members' compliance. A valid certificate confirms only that the service provider satisfied LCA requirements at registration and its most recent audit. It does not confirm actual or continuing compliance, approve specific products or services, or verify the competence of staff or subcontractors. The LCA accepts no liability for omissions, acts carried out in reliance on its documents, or loss or damage resulting from non-compliance.
